Chicago Health Department Objects to Their Being Cut Up for Meat for Food.

Beef Trust Kicks and Claims that Only the Animal's Head Should Be Destroyed.

The Chicago Health Department wants the whole of every lumpy-jawed animal or of every animal suffering from that dreadful disease destroyed.

The cattle people object and say that it is only necessary to destroy the swollen, pus-filled head of the critter.

In other words, they would sell the body of the animal to the people for food.

The department is finding it hard work to enforce its rule in this regard, as so many of the so-called veterinarians are controlled by the Beef Trust and they advise that the destruction of the head is sufficient.

Dr. Whalen deserves credit for the fight he is making for the public health and should be sustained in every particular.

Following are Dr. Whalen's orders on the subject as announced in the Health Department Bulletin, Dec. 10, 1905:

"The department has made a new ruling in regard to 'lumpy jaw' or actinomycotic animals. Hereafter all animals that show, on post-mortem examination, a degeneration of the lesion, with cavity formation, containing pus, will be condemned and destroyed. 'Heretofore only those with a general infection were destroyed.'"

The Beef Trust has fought this ruling from the start and is still fighting it.

The Beef Trust inquiry must cease. To secure a more extended food inspection for Chicago, six of the prime movers of the Consumers' League called upon Commissioners of Health Whalen. They offered the services of a corps of skilled inspectors. Dr. Whalen agreed to co-operate with the league.

While they declare the work they do is efficient, the members of the league assert more men are needed.

The committee which called on Dr. Whalen was composed of the following: Miss Jane Addams, Mrs. Bryan Lathrop, Cornelia De Beyer, Harriet Vandervort, Anna Nicholas, and Paul Pierce.

"We have no complaint to make with the work of the Health Department," said Mrs. Lathrop, "but on account of the few men whom they can employ the inspection is not as far reaching as it should be."

The inspection proposed by the league will be entirely independent of state or city authorities. Within a few days a large corps of inspectors will be sent out.

What an awful fuss the daily newspapers make over the insurance scandal! And yet not one person in 1,000 is affected by them. Yet the daily newspapers have nothing to say against the Beef Trust, which robs every man, woman and child in the community every day.

The workingman and every other man for that matter is entitled to pure food and pure medicine. A government that does not protect a man and his family in these particulars deserves to be overthrown. The Beef Trust must go.
